Doro's new walkie-talkie – waterproof and subscription-free

The Doro wt91x pro walkie-talkie is designed to withstand tough knocks and wet environments. The walkie-talkie is completely waterproof and specially designed to meet the tough demands set by professional users, such as workmen and construction workers. The wt91x pro is a smart, value-for-money, long-range communication tool that works up to a distance of 10km in open terrain.

Doro's new walkie-talkie is completely waterproof and is suitable for professions such as construction workers, airport staff and other professions with active duties, filled with physical outdoor activities.

"The wt91x pro is a modern work tool that functions in demanding environments and bad weather, without its usability being adversely affected," says Petra Lundgren, Marketing Communication Manager at Doro Business Electronics.

It's small and compact and well equipped to withstand repeated knocks and tough conditions. The dark grey rubber case, which gives it its discreet appearance, also makes it easy to grip and stable to hold.

The walkie-talkie comes with many user-friendly functions. It can easily be fixed to a belt and allows an unlimited number of users on the same channel. The wt91x pro is also one of the most waterproof products of its kind on the market (ipx7).

The Doro wt91x pro is part of the Doro Business Electronics product range. This also includes the wt96 pro, which is also a compact walkie-talkie that's able to withstand tough conditions. The wt96 pro has a range of up to 14km, is splash- and dust-proof and has an inbuilt vibration function.

Doro's walkie-talkies can be used almost anywhere, aren't dependent on mobile phone operators' coverage and there are no call costs, making it a cost-effective work tool.

The Doro wt91x pro and Doro wt96 are available in well-stocked retail outlets and cost around SEK 900 and SEK 1,000 respectively per pair.
