Doro to showcase new offerings within TeleCare and Telehealth at MEDICA – the world’s largest trade fair for medical equipment

In line with Doro’s strategy for TeleCare and Telehealth, the company will showcase their solutions and its first partnerships at the MEDICA trade fair in Dusseldorf, on November 14-17th, 2012.

“We are proud to showcase the result of the last twelve months intensive development work. Our TeleCare offer is a very good combination of our available and recently developed technologies, Secure Protocols and partners’ solutions”, says Doro’s President and CEO Jérôme Arnaud.

Doro will showcase its TeleCare product range with:

- The Doro Secure 680, a mobile phone with GPS, supporting Java ME, which can provide its localization when the alarm is sent via the GPRS network to an Alarm Receiving Center.
- The Doro Secure 211, an M2M gateway, receiving alarms signals from alarm pendant including a fall detection option or other sensors and transmitting them via the GPRS network using Doro Secure IP protocol.
- A version of our new smartphone, Doro Secure 740, will also integrate the Doro Secure IP protocol and transmit alarm via 3G network.

In addition, Doro will demonstrate its first partnership with:

- Vivago ® watch – a watch including alarm button and activity detection - interconnected with the Doro Secure 211,
